

Interior Designer

At VPS Architecture, we design environments that support learning, connection, and growth. Our work spans classrooms, student centers, libraries, and community spaces across Indiana and beyond, grounded in the belief that thoughtful interiors shape how people experience education.

We are seeking an Interior Designer who brings both creative vision and technical care to every project. This role is well suited for someone early in their career or fresh out of college who already has hands on experience developing FF&E packages and supporting interior documentation.

In this role, you will work closely with our architects and clients to create interiors that are functional, inspiring, and buildable. You will contribute to design concepts, develop finish palettes and material selections, produce interior drawings, and help carry ideas through from early design to construction. You will also assist with FF&E specifications, schedules, and coordination to ensure that each space is delivered with clarity and intent.

You will thrive here if you care deeply about the impact of your work, enjoy collaboration, and want to see your designs become real places that are used and loved by students and educators every day.

This position is based in our Indianapolis office, working on education focused projects throughout the region.

If you are ready to help design the places where learning happens, we would love to meet you.
